Our Spring Fashion Exhibit

Shows the true trend of styles in a fascinating collection of Suits, Gowns, Costumes, Coats, Wraps, Blouses, Millinery, Skirts, Sweaters, Riding Habits and Misses' and Girls' Newest Outer Apparel.

This is an exhibition of the accepted and the worthy spring fashions which should be of unusual interest to all. It is a season in which the revival of old-fashioned fashions, such as our mothers and grandmothers are familiar with, reaches its greatest height and charm. The garment which may properly be called the waist or bodice-that part that belongs above the waist line—is very close fitting, while the skirts are voluminous and magnificent.

Fine Model Suits, of foreign creation.

Faille Silk and Taffeta Suits, Silk-and-Serge Suits, Beaded and Hand-embroidered Suits in original effects, Callot Check, Velour Check and English Tweed Suits, Leather, Suede and Button-trimmed Tailored and Semi-Dress Suits, Taffeta Silk Banded Suits in semi-fancy models, Stylish Stout and Mourning Suits, White Gabardine, Hopsacking and Linen Suits.

'EXTRA" REVENUES TOTAL $15,000,000

Commissioner Osborn Reports Large Sums Collected by Uncovering of Frauds.

AMOUNT ALMOST EQUALS COST OF THE SERVICE

Questionable Fractices Are Alleged Against Olecgargarine Producers. Distillers and Others.

In enforcing payment of taxes with held from the government through frauds and through collection of taxes not reported due, there has been collected approximately $15,000,000 extra revenues through the internal revenue oureau during two years and eight nonths in which Commissioner W. H. born has held office. Commissioner Osborn has held office. Commissioner report to the Secretary of the Treasry. He recites that this revenue would have been lost to the government except for the activities of the internal evenue bureau in uncovering fraud and discovering unreported Hability to tax, and the enforcement of payment

"This amount is almost as great as the total amount expended for the col lection of approximately $1,090,000,00 for the period from April 28, 1913, to December 31, 1915, inclusive, he sets forth in his report. "In other words, the service has unearthed enough tax to almost pay for itself, leaving the collection of $1,073,000,000 free of ex-nerse."

Three Groups of Frauds Alleged.

Three great groups of frauds were onsidered in his campaign for the enforcement of tax payments: Oleomar COATES. On Monday, March 13, 1916, at Providence Hospital, ELIZABETH, beloved mother of Rev. R. F. Coates, Henry, James, Joseph, John, Abraham and Bernadine.

vey, and equalization in distillery warehouses.

The extent of oleomargarine frauds is indicated by the fact that in seven cases $19.250,152.32 of tax was proved to have been evaded during the period from 2uly 1, 1912, to the time of the discovery of the frauds. Of this amount $4,675,561.29 was within the statute of limitations and was assessed.

This amount was far in excess of the total assets of the concerns involved in the frauds, but by distraint, forfeiture of the factories, compromises and from the bonds, a total of $809,-722.79 has been collected. It is confidently expected that from $300,000 to $400,000 more will be collected. An offer made by one interest to pay $275,-900 in compromise of claims has been rejected. DAVIS.

Distillers Under Accusation.

The existence of extesive frauds ommitted by a group of distillers operting in Virginia with ramifications extending into Florida and Arkansas had been suspected for years. Well had been suspected for years. Well informed revenue officers estimated the frauds on the revenue in Virginia alone at as much as two million dollars a year. Early in the spring of last year a distillery in Arkansas, the proprietors of which had formerly been connected with distilleries in North Carolina. Virginia and Florida, was seized for fraud. As the result of investigation of ciues and evidence then discovered a number of indictments were returned, some of them against former revenue officers, who had conspired with the distillers to permit frauds. Nine of the persons involved have pleaded guilty or been convicted, with sentences imposed ranging from six months to nine years, toom six months to nine years, to-ther with fines totaling $33,000. A mber of those indicted are yet to be

Sales of Forfeited Property.

From the sale of forfeited property seized some $10,000 was realized. There is property under seizure yet to be sold of an appraised Palue of approximately $25,000 more. From distillers' bonds, $19,600 has been collected. There

Investigation of "Equalization." Investigation in Kentucky indicated that the government was being defrauded through the practice of equalization of the evaporation of spirits in bond. Satisfactory overt evidence of this fraud is difficult to obtain and the extent of it nust be based upon estimate and comarison of gauges. "For obvious reasons," observed Commissioner Osborn, "under the circum stances, it has been considered advisable to accept fair offers in compromise. Four of such cases have been closed by a ceptance of $85,000, and in-a fifth, where no offer has been made, about $37,000 has been assessed and collected, but suit will be brought for its recovery."

A total of $868.916.68 has been accepted in compromise of various charges during the period from April 28, 1913, to December 31, 1915, not including $400.000 to be paid as the result of court settlement of the liability of one stockholder in one oleomargarine case. There are not included, as well, any sums making up the total of $895,722.79, collected on account of oleomargarine frauds, although $70,000 of this account was collected by way of compromise.

The discontinuance of the assignment of gaugers to spirit-rectifying establishments July 1, 1915, has resulted in a saving of $30,000 a month. Commissioner Osborn notes no resultant disadvantage to the government. His bureau force consists of 520 employes, and there are approximately 4,204 in the field force. He pays high compliment to field and bureau employes for their success in enforcing the law.
